

SCHOOL DAYS

BUSINESS

Courtesy photos

GO TEAM—Left, members of the Westlake High School branch of Student Corps learn about the operations at Westminster Free Clinic in Thousand Oaks, a health services provider for the disadvantaged. Above, back row far left, are Jessica Xu, the Westlake High Student Corps leader, and Lisa Safaeinili, Westminster Free Clinic executive director.

Student Corps stages fundraiser to help local Westminster health clinic

Volunteers from a local chapter of the Student Corps organization raised $500 and donated the money to the Westminster Free Clinic in a presentation held on March 24.

Jessica Xu, a 10th-grader and head of the Westlake High School branch of Student Corps, works as a volunteer at Westminster Clinic's T.O. location.

During last week's check the community by young people. The organization creates opportunities and provides resources for student-led community projects across the nation.

Westminster Free Clinic is a community-based nonprofit that provides medical services to low-income and uninsured families of Ventura County. The clinic, which has sites in Oxnard and Thousand Oaks, also serves students considering careers in healthcare.